Effort To Poison Family Revealed

Arsenic Poured Into Well at I. W. Kibler's Home Near Gurdon

LITTLE ROCK.—An attempt to poison members of the I. W. Kibler family, 10 miles southeast of Gurdon, became known here Tuesday when Sheriff Alfred Duke of Clark county arrived with evidence to enlist the aid of J. Earl Scroggins, superintendent of the Little Rock Police Department's Bureau of Identification. The evidence, a jar which still contained arsenic was left with Lieutenant Scroggins for examination.

Sheriff Duke said a well on the Kibler farm was polluted with arsenic in sufficient quantity to cause death.

The poison was placed in the well Thursday night by a person or persons who were unfamiliar with arsenic and its actions when placed in water. This fact alone, Sheriff Duke says, saved the family. A negro drawing water for the stock early the following morning discovered a white scum on top of the water. He called Mr. Kibler and the well was guarded until officers reached the scene. Sheriff Duke said arsenic will not mix with water easily, but will float. The well was cleaned and scoured, but still is not used.

"The Play's the Thing"

THERE is something wholesome, simple, and inspiring in the life story of David Belasco. He knew what he wanted to do when he was only 14. He produced a play that year, and when he died the other day the spangled lights of Broadway were carrying the name of his 400th odd play.

David Belasco achieved greatness because he saw the all-together human appeal that the make-believe world has for people who sit at typewriters, stand behind counters, or discuss the world's business in the Main Street and Wall Street offices.

They want a cross-section of life. Something stimulating, varied, sympathetic, humorous, sad at times, but, above all, distinctly human and real. Not puppets moved by a string. Not actors who say clever lines that are just words in their mouths. But something that is so genuine it could have been lived, with the added dramatic vigor that the stage has and life disguises.

It is because of this human interest and understanding of David Belasco's that those who love the make-believe world are said: "The stage-lights are shining as brightly as ever." The play goes on, as the master of stagecraft would have wanted it too. The play is the thing, Shakespeare said long ago. Belasco was great because he knew the truth of that statement.

Maybe people learned a lesson or two from life a little more clearly because David Belasco lived and dramatized.
 It is easier to catch the impress of anything that is portrayed pictorially. But certainly people approached a keener understanding of the relationship of art and life because he gathered the vibrancy and pathos and humor of it all, and put it on the stage, for the world to see.

Most of the truly great lessons aren't taught by people who deliver weighty sermons or write serious books with the moral nicely outlined at the beginning and summed up in a conscientious manner at the end. That sort of thing isn't hard to do. It isn't especially important, either, because it doesn't get an audience. It is boring. And the 20th century hasn't time to be bored.

It takes someone who has keen understanding of life as it is lived, a vivid sense that the public has a conscience and a set of values and a certain amount of mentality to help life along.

For such a person will do the thing that he wants to do for the love of the doing. To be true to his art, to be progressive in his profession, he has to grow. He will help the world along, but he won't know that he has. And neither will it.
 David Belasco played that way. Perhaps that is why he succeeded.

Women Wage-Earners

THE arrival of woman as a wage earner in all sorts of fields has led man to a good deal of perplexity during the last few years. Nowhere is this perplexity deeper, and nowhere does it lead to any more peculiar reasoning, than when the woman who holds a full-time job also happens to be married.

This perplexity has been bothering all kinds of employers lately. And a fair sample of the conclusion the employer often comes to is afforded in a large middle western city, where the board of education recently voted to discharge all married women from its teaching staff and hire single women instead.

If there is any reasonable theory back of such a decision, it probably is the theory that the married women are teaching just for the fun of it, or just to make a little pin money on the side. The single woman, not having anyone to support her—unless, perchance, she lives with her parents—thus has a more valid claim on the job than her married sister.

Unfortunately, this one board of education is not alone in this view. Other cities have taken the same action. Employment managers in some factories and offices have followed suit. And it is all rather silly.

If every married woman who held a job had a husband who also had a job, it wouldn't be quite so silly. But that is by no means the case.

There are today some six million men out of work in the United States. A good proportion are married and have families. And in thousands upon thousands of cases the only thing that has kept their families from absolute want has been the fact that the wives have been steadily employed.

Thousands of girls and women who work in factories are doing it, not to earn pin money or to achieve a feeling of independence, but to support their families while their husbands remain unemployed.

The same thing is true of thousands of salesgirls, stenographers and office assistants. And exactly the same thing is true of many, many school teachers.

In normal times it may be no more than fair to give the preference to single women in passing out jobs. But times right now are far from normal. One would suppose that it would be more sensible to replace the unmarried wage-earners with married ones.

This move to oust the married woman from her job is one of the silliest of all of the business depression's products.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Old Mr. Riker was carried down from his home in a tree on an isolated Virginia hilltop and died two or three days later.

A few persons gathered for his funeral at a small undertaking parlor here. They included an elevator man at the Senate office building, several other employees from Capitol Hill, a man from the American Engineering Council and a congressman.

That was the end of Carroll Livingston Riker, who may have been one of the great geniuses of his age. He was engineer and inventor, originator of stupendous projects such as other engineers may be developing a hundred years hence. He proposed to change the climate of a hemisphere by harnessing the mightiest ocean currents; he aspired to alter the future of the great Mississippi valley. His breath-taking programs were so simple and so carefully planned that they often fascinated the sanest and soundest of men.

Built Mississippi Model

Mr. Riker was the white-haired, browned, but fragile gentleman, often seen standing by that enormous model of his Mississippi river flood control plan in the Senate office building basement.
 There the water flows down from Cairo and Cape Girardeau through a miniature of the immense three mile wide, 500-mile long Riker spillway and into the gulf; Riker's brain made the Father of Waters a canal. His towers, red stop-lights, water gates, power houses, levees, conduits, reservoirs, highways along levee tops with toy motor cars and great ocean liners plying up to St. Louis for two or three years have enchanted the guests and denizens of the capitol.
 Bent by age but lucid in mind and speech, he operated his model and explained everything in everybody in minutest detail.
 Quite a few capitol folk developed a deep affection for him. Since 1914 when he assured Congress that a "terrible catastrophe" on the Mississippi was certain unless the government's "levees only" flood control policy was abandoned, this man had persistently denounced the army engineers in masterpieces of invective fit to delight any lover of words.

Foresew Huge Profit

Riker explained to all-comers how his spillway would run the river in a new straight line through swamps and cheap land, how great power dams would be built, locks installed to permit ocean commerce, capacity provided to handle twice the historic peak of the river's waters, muddy banks replaced by sites for docks and warehouses, levees built 70 feet high with 100-foot top width and 300-foot base from earth removed in digging drainage canals on each side of the spillway, how the cost would be two billion dollars, but how the first five years would show 10 billion dollars of profit through enhanced land values, power development, prevention of flood loss, highway and railroad beds and so on.

The old man spent his last years working night and day to promote the plan. Senator Franzler of North Dakota gave himself wholeheartedly to Riker's fight for a full investigation of the plan by a commission of civilian engineers. Riker had a large house near Falls Church, Va. But alongside he built himself a pretty little green dwelling held 20 feet in the air by a tall tree-stump. It was his home for three years—a place with a bedroom, sunporch, electricity and electric heat. His heart trouble was increasing and Frazier, perhaps his best friend, sometimes drove out and besought him to move into town. At last the old man's condition became desperate; friends brought a physician, persuaded him to let himself be moved down the ladder and carried into civilization to die.

An amazing life was over.

Burglar's Lost Shoe Leads to Capture

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(U.P.)—Police here faced the task of the Prince Charming of the tale of Cinderella here when a burglar in his haste to escape approaching officers lost his shoe in a home he was burglarizing.

Armed with the burglar's shoe, the officers broadcast an alarm. A few minutes later police arrested a man who was strolling down an avenue with only one shoe. They tried the shoe on. It fit.

The fact an increasing number of phone calls are being made at the White House should convince you that the Republicans are quite a busy party.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

There will have to be done some of these things, it is believed, before the Davis Cup matches can be held in the near future. The Davis Cup matches might be held in the near future, it is believed, before the Davis Cup matches can be held in the near future. The Davis Cup matches might be held in the near future, it is believed, before the Davis Cup matches can be held in the near future.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

A STYMIS decided a recent women's golf championship match in Philadelphia. Mrs. Ralph Raynor, holder of the district championship, lost to Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd on the 13th green. Miss Ruth Reuther, daughter of Dutch Reuther, is one of the pitchers on the Bloomer Girls team at Englewood, Calif. Dutch is pitching for Seattle now. A night golf was tried by Ave golfers at the University of Detroit recently. The balls were luminous-painted, but the visibility must not have been so good because the players quit after shooting three holes and losing 40 balls. Georgetown and Catholic University at Washington have horseshoe pitching on their intra-mural sports program. A tournament between the two schools might result in some very skillful dodging, anyway.

Wood Is Engaged

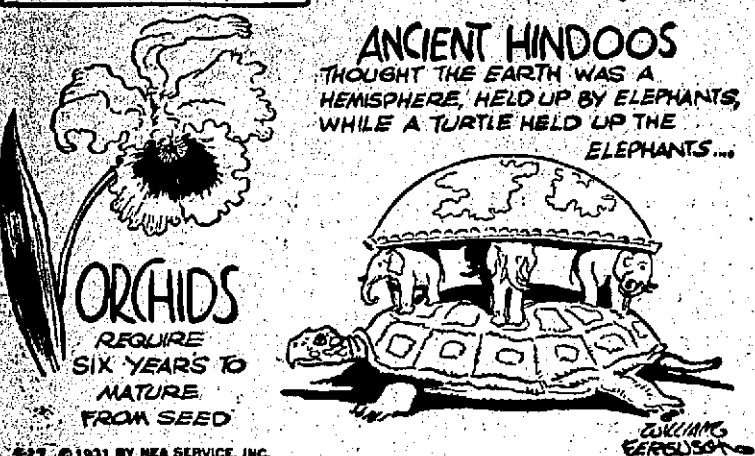

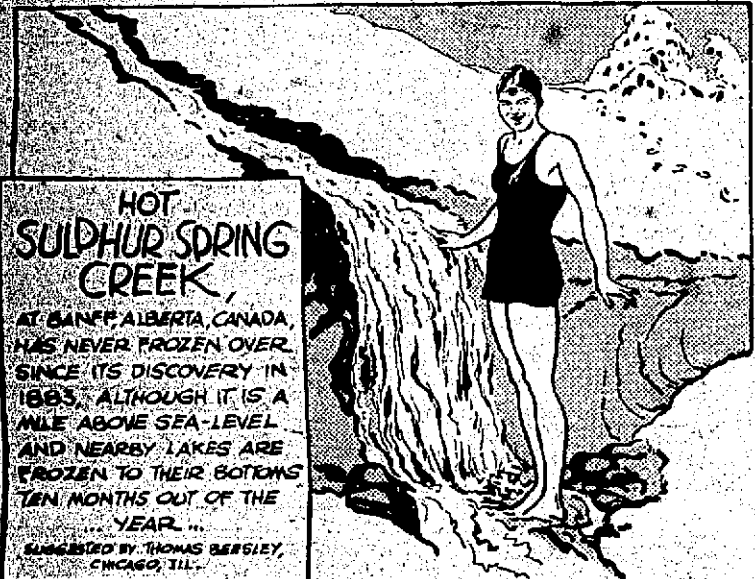

SIDNEY WOOD, the baby of the Davis Cup team this year, isn't married but is likely to be in the near future. Wood, who is engaged to a girl from Lake Forest, Ill., whom he met in Tucson where he is a freshman at the University of Arizona. Wood has overcome a great many ailments. The slim New York boy, in his childhood, battled and best pneumonia, Bright's disease, double mastoids and stomach trouble. He fattened up a little while at school last year, and when he began to play in the matches with Mexico, weighed 155. After the tournament there, he found he had lost eight pounds.

So Is Shields

FRANK SHIELDS, hurrying from Mexico to Canada for the matches at Montreal, found time to stop off for a day or two at Northampton, Mass. It seems he is engaged, too. Perhaps Shields and Wood ought to conspire with Wilmer Allison and demand a showdown on expenses for the wives of Davis Cup players. No expenses for wives, no Davis Cup matches! There wouldn't be anything the dear old U. S. L. T. A. could do about it.

Athletics' Streak of 17 Wins Broken

Yankees, After Losing 3 Games, Finally Stop Philadelphia

The winning streak of the Philadelphia Athletics, which has reached 17 consecutive games, was halted Tuesday when the New York Yankees beat the world champions 6 to 2. For three games, however, the Yanks had been unable to stem the tide. The trick was turned in the fourth game of the series by Vernon Gomez, left-hander, who let the champs down with seven hits.

Eddie Rummel started on the mound for Philadelphia but was shelled out in the second inning, the Yanks scoring three runs. Babe Ruth hung up his seventh home run tally of the year, circling the bases with nobody on in the sixth inning.

In the other American League games Detroit defeated Chicago, 4 to 2; Cleveland won a double-header from St. Louis, 12 to 0, and 4 to 2; and Boston beat Washington, 6 to 4.

The St. Louis Cardinals hung onto their 4-point lead in the National League, whipping Pittsburgh 11 to 9. But the New York Giants, sweeping a double-header, cut into St. Louis margin. The Phillies beat Brooklyn 8-4; and Hornsby's Chicago, Cubs swamped Cincinnati twice, 7-2 and 9-6.

Ohio Governor Helps Buy Pastor New Stove

COLUMBUS, Ohio.—(U.P.)—Governor Myers F. Cooper has just "dug down in his jeans" and contributed to another cause.

The following letter is self explanatory: Dear Sir:

"Our minister is in need of a cook stove. I am on a committee to help raise money for one. They have it to cook for and they need one, bad. As every one is poor around here, I thought I would ask you to give a little toward buying him one."

"As I am a poor girl I have no way of making any money. I just have to resort to something like this to raise my share. We want to have the stove for a Christmas present for the reverend."

The little girl's name and her place of residence was kept a secret by the governor.

Marshal Feng Urges Friends to Read

PEIPING, U.P.—"Read more books," is the invariable advice given by Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, so-called "Christian General," according to friends who have visited him in his retreat in a Shanai village.

Since his defeat last autumn in the rebellion against the Chinese government, Marshal Feng, has disappeared from public life. When politicians seek to persuade him to make books. Go home and read instead of agitating.
